Reports

This page provides links to materials designed to assist in teaching students the fundamentals of report writing in TPC. Two types of reports are covered: feasibility and recommendation. The skills stressed in these exercises and projects are highly valued in the workplace and adaptable to different types of TPC curricula and course structures. Some of these are:

- collaborative writing
- team building
- accountability
- visual design
- working with qualitative and quantitative data
- research
- oral presentation
- structure and organization of persuasive documents

Listed below are project instructions for the two types of reports:

- Recommendation Report Instructions

Supplemental materials for scaffolding are organized under report types, but may prove useful across a wide range of assignments in any TPC classroom. View the Classroom Topics page for more resources on project specific activities.
